Education

Seoul National University Mar 2019 – Present
PhD Student in Computer Science and Engineering
Expected graduation: February 2027 | Advisor: Prof. Sang-goo Lee
Seoul, Republic of Korea

Sogang University Feb 2013 – Feb 2019
BS in Computer Science and Engineering
Seoul, Republic of Korea

Current Research

My current research interests lie at the intersection of multimodal understanding, long-context learning, and LLM-based agents. I am particularly interested in how models interpret rich context, retain relevant information, and use it to support coherent reasoning and action over extended tasks. My work spans omni-modal evaluation and next-scene prediction, multilingual long-context mid-training, and memory for web agents. Alongside these research efforts, I am developing an LLM-based Minecraft agent to explore practical collaboration between people and agents.

Professional Experience

NAVER Cloud Oct 2025 – Aug 2026
Foundation Research, AI Residency (WBL Project)

- Language and reasoning evaluation: Implemented WBL evaluations; validated Hugging Face log-likelihood compatibility and Qwen2.5-Omni/Emu3 vLLM integration, input formats, and evaluation consistency.
- Omni-evaluator (separate project): Contributed to validating the consistency of the evaluation framework and implementing selected components. Related publication: EMNLP 2026 Demo
- OmniNSP: Contributed to next-scene prediction research and benchmark development for omni-modal world modeling. Related publication: Findings of EMNLP 2026

Intellisys Sep 2018 – Mar 2020
Research & Software Engineer

- Developed microservices-based backends and Kubernetes-based model serving.
- Researched fashion-item classification, outfit compatibility and recommendation scoring, and item similarity.
